Later in 1961, he accepted the post of Head of the North American Division of Shell International Petroleum Company. His headquarters were in London.

He returned to Shell Oil Company as General Manager, Technical Department, Manufacturing Organization, in 1963, and held that post until February 1965 when he accepted a six-month assignment as a member of the Public Affairs Fellowship Program of the Brookings Institution in Washington, D.C. In July 1965 he was named General Manager, Transportation and Supplies. He was elected Vice President — Transportation and Supplies in 1966.

Mr. St. Clair was named President of Shell Chemical Company and a Director of Shell Oil Company on August 1, 1967.
